Pepper Construction Promotes Brian Greiner, Mick Metzger and Lance Tritsch as Senior Vice Presidents – Operations

CHICAGO, IL – January 30, 2025 Pepper Construction Company announced three key leadership promotions as part of its strategy to build momentum around growth and building a better tomorrow.

Pepper Construction has promoted Brian Greiner to Senior Vice President of Operations. With experience in Operations, IT and Accounting, Brian will strengthen the link between operations and finance to meet goals and drive growth. By collaborating with business units, he will help team leaders expand their business acumen to further complement and support Pepper's construction expertise. Brian holds an MBA in Accountancy from DePaul University and a BA in Accounting from Wartburg College.

Mick Metzger has been promoted to Senior Vice President, overseeing Pepper Construction's healthcare business unit. Mick has managed more than $1.5 billion of construction projects in almost every market the company serves. He leads strategy and the firm's healthcare experts to extend client relationships, expand our business and share thought leadership that adds value. A graduate of Purdue University, Mick has lectured and served on the university's Construction Management Advisory Committee.

Pepper Construction has promoted Lance Tritsch to Senior Vice President. An industry leader in K-12 construction, Lance has helped to grow Pepper's K-12 business to more than $200 million over the past 10 years. He brings a deep understanding of contemporary learning environments to each project and knows how to best engage school districts, teachers and communities to achieve their goals. Lance holds degrees in Advanced Technical Studies, Applied Science and Construction Technology.
